The Rev. Lori Lowe reported on the status of DYVE, a program for college students exploring a vocation to ordination.

Committee on Bishop's Address: The Rev. Amanda Brady reported as follows:

Grace to you and peace from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ!

That's how you started your address yesterday. It was fitting, because grace and peace are both needed in good measure these days.

Your frank and honest assessment of the concerns of the wider church was refreshing. We appreciate your passion and humanity, your love of this diocese and the church, your articulation of how difficult it is to live in the tension in this in-between time, and your commitment to stay at the table regardless of how messy and uncomfortable that may be. We want you to know that we stand with you and will do our best to put up with you when you are cantankerous and fussy! And we ask that you do the same for us.

You addressed the adverse issues facing the wider church with hope and a call to unity. Indeed, unless we are committed to staying at the Table and intentional about making space for everyone else to be there too, we are diminished. It is through word and sacrament in the midst of the gathered faithful that we are empowered to do the work of the Kingdom. Our common mission stems from our common life—we cannot have one without the other.

It has been some years since the Strategic Planning Committee met and discerned the Connect-Grow-Transform direction for the diocese. We have come a long way in the intervening years, but there is still much to accomplish. You bring the areas of children, youth and young adults; leadership development; growing the church; environmental initiatives; and global mission to our attention.

We agree that our children and young people deserve our best efforts. Offering diocesan resources is one way to strengthen each parish's commitment and offerings with age appropriate formation opportunities. We particularly like how you supported the network of young adults who forged a community and created websites and such, celebrating their accomplishments and gathering them deeper into the arms of the church they love. All our younger members are indeed the church of today, and they have much to teach us about our life of faith and how to be together.

There is some anxiety around the call to access the needs of the diocese in regards to camp and conference ministry. There is a deep and abiding love of Camp Mikell, and Ken Struble and his staff continue a vital ministry there even in the face of the challenges of an aging facility. But I am convinced that in faithful and honest conversations we will discern a way forward that will both honor the good work already happening in Toccoa and meet the growing needs of the diocese for a conference facility.

Leadership development was your next item. We agree that strong healthy congregations require leadership development at all levels—for lay leaders as well as clergy. The vital life and ministry of our parishes, our diocese, and the wider church depend on it. We look forward to the conversation and the possibilities.

Growing the church, the planting of congregations, and the equipping and strengthening of congregations to live out the Great Commission is difficult to argue with. Sharing with others the Good News in true Anglican style is part of what continues to make the diocese of Atlanta a vibrant missionary outpost in the 21st century.

Practicing good stewardship of the environment is important to our understanding of what it means to be stewards of all that God has given us. The recent publicity about the diminished water levels in our reservoirs is indicative of how critical faithful stewardship of our natural resources is. Providing our parishes with the means to educate and support folks in their daily endeavors to conserve will be a big help—not to mention critical to our health and the long-term viability of the planet. I figure the first order of business will be to figure out who is going to receive the Georgia Interfaith Power and Light award for next year so we can keep it in the family!

Last but not least are global mission and the Millennium Development goals. Good things are going on in various parts of the world, with our 3 companion dioceses, as well as people on the ground in many places around the world spending weeks, months and even years at a time— building relationships, building a better future for our brothers and sisters around the world, and witnessing to the good things that happen when people of faith step forward in faith at home and abroad. Even more is possible with our continuing and growing support.

Your Grace, having met our goals from the first Strategic Planning Group, you are not content to let us rest on our laurels. You have set the bar good and high in a variety of areas important to the common life in our parish communities and in the wider community.

You have cast a vision. It is for the rest of us, those sitting around these tables and the good people we represent to take the next step, to join you in carrying it forward. Because no one of us can accomplish this work alone. We must pray, reflect, discern, shape and finally claim the vision as our own. Only then will it become reality.

May our Lord Jesus draw us together in one holy fellowship, and give us the grace to accomplish the ministries set before us. To God be the glory!
